Ewallet cash out

See more At the moment, the payout feature is not available in our eWallet. However, you can use your eWallet balance in so many ways. You can transfer to your friends and family, pay your bills, buy cinema tickets and use it at any of our participating retailers. Was this article useful? 1290 out of 1900 found this useful Can't find what you're looking for? Submit a request eWallet - The app to handle all your payments! Send & receive money on your UAE mobile line, Pay Etisalat Bills & Merchants. NO registration fees, NO minimum balance & NO bank account required. Written by Farhan Gazi Having to dig through wallets for cash feels very primitive in the 21st century. But not everyone has easy access to credit and debit cards. Others remain wary of credit cards and their potential pitfalls. This situation has led to the introduction of e-wallets; digital services that help people pay for things via smartphone apps. Given the options available, it is not easy to determine which of these to adopt. We take a look at the most popular e-wallets in Malaysia and try to find out which gives you the best ROI. What is an e-wallet? On the surface are e-wallets like debit cards working out of an app. You load money into a virtual wallet and then use these funds to pay for goods and services. How this works varies across the types of e-wallets. Some use QR code scanning to establish real-world customer-merchant relationships, while others are limited only to Internet transactions. Downloads using Near Field Connection (NFC) technology are also available, but are not supported by many smartphones. Payments are not the only thing that these e-wallets are able to handle. Each service adds their own sprinkling of features that they believe will bring the most benefit to their target audience. Most common would be the possibility of transferring funds between individuals; although there are also features like buyer protection, loyalty card integration, and proprietary magnetic tape technology. For this comparison, we use the most important metrics for an e-wallet. First, payment technology is important for how easy it is for both customers and merchants to start using the system. Next is a short list of stores that accept the special e-wallet; This is not a complete folder as it would take too much space to fit everything in one place. Instead, it's a collection of the most useful places. Finally, there is an overview of additional features that enable the e-wallet in question apart from the competition. Boost Payment Method: QR Code, In-app payments Noteworthy merchant: 99 speedmart, Telekom Malaysia, SYABAS, DBKL Parking Bonus: Boost main audience are smaller merchants who only experiment with the idea of cashless payments. The company has been pasar malam suppliers all over the country, and has seen some success in this regard. More importantly, it has worked with utilities such as Telekom Malaysia and and for all in-app payments. It also expands a partnership so users can pay for parking in the larger KL area. Boost also has a partnership with Shell stations that allows users to pay for gasoline at over 800 stations around the country. However, this still requires the user to scan the QR code at the counter. An increase in the number of e-wallet related scams in 2020 caused Boost to disrupt a feature that allowed users to withdraw their credit to a bank account. This took effect in May 2020, and had the unfortunate effect of removing one of Boost's most unique features. GrabPay Payment Method: QR Code, In-App Payments Notable Merchants: TeaLive, Inside Scoop, Manhattan Fish Market Bonus: GrabPay has the advantage of being part of the Grab Platform ecosystem; essentially makes it possible to be used to call a Grab ride or use it to order from Grab Food. It also has a partnership with Maybank for cross platform use with traders who accept Maybank Pay. It should be noted that while GrabPay is available throughout Southeast Asia it does not convert credits to local currencies. Which means customers will have to manually utter up their credit when they travel. Lazada Wallet Payment Method: Online Notable Merchants: Lazada Bonus: Lazada Wallet is one of the few e-wallets to offer cashback on all purchases. This comes at the massive price of only being able to use it on Lazada's own online store, and as cashback credits that expire after a few months. This is perhaps the most limited of the e-wallets considering the scope. It's supposed to lock users into the Lazada ecosystem, so people should be aware of what they're getting themselves into. Samsung Pay Payment Method: Magnetic Field Transfer, NFC Notable Merchants: Anywhere that supports credit card read Bonus: Unlike the other e-wallets in this comparison, Samsung Pay doesn't actually save any funds. Instead, it stores payment card information and acts as a kind of extra layer between the two. What is unique here is its proprietary MFT technology. This allows a smartphone or smartwatch to mimic the magnetic stripe on a credit card so it can work without further investment from merchants. MFT also allows Samsung Pay to support loyalty cards like those from Aeon; which means they can also be stored in the app. The only downside is that Samsung Pay is limited to select Samsung branded smartphones and smartwatches. MFT support also appears only on the highest end Samsung smartphones, leaving the more affordable devices with only NFC support. Although nothing says living in the future like paying for lunch with your watch. PayPal payment method: Online payments. Offline payments are available in selected countries Notable Merchants: Almost all online store Bonus: PayPal is grandfather to e-wallets. Existed from even before the term was being an organization at international level means PayPal can be used across borders and will even convert between currencies currencies Payments. It also allows users to withdraw by transferring their funds to a local bank account. Buyer protection for PayPal is also considered to be one of the best in the world; although this occasionally comes at the expense of traders. PayPal biggest problem is the significantly higher fees it charges on remittances. The company has a 7% cut on international remittance; which is higher than some people would like to deal with. Touch 'n Go eWallet Payment Method: QR code Notable Merchants: Family Mart, 7-Eleven, myNEWS.com, Tesco, Plus Motorways Bonus: TnG e-Wallet still has a number of features in the testing phase. In this case, the number of available traders is still very short. While the company wrapped a beta test of the TnG mobile app on the Kelana Jaya LRT line in 2019, it has not yet fully implemented across the MRT and LRT lines. The Pay Direct feature allows users to connect their TnG card to TnG e-Wallet. This will cause the payment space to withdraw money from the e-wallet first and will only charge the TnG card if there is not enough credit. Touch 'n Go's RFID payment option is also tied to TnG eWallet. It automatically deducts funds when gantry scans the RFID tag on your car. This payment system is rolled out to a majority of closed-circuit highways, with open-loop highways set to enter in the near future. vcash Payment Method: QR code Notable Merchants: Tony Roma's, Mydin, Astro Go Shop, Kedai Mesra Petronas Bonus: Digi's vcash was one of the earliest homegrown e-wallets to appear in Malaysia, launched at the end of last year. Since then, it has expanded to include a partnership with Petronas that makes it the only e-wallet that can be used to pay for gasoline (except Samsung's MFT technology). Vcash ceased operations on December 1, 2019 and became the first e-wallet to throw in the towel in an extremely saturated market. WeChat Pay Payment Method: QR Code Notable Merchants: KK Mart Bonus: WeChat Pay is perhaps one of the most anticipated e-wallet to reach Malaysia; be tied to one of the most popular instant messaging services available. This gives the added benefit of also being able to buy bus tickets. A practical feature that is likely to meet WeChat's most important demographic. Also available here is the option to use WeChat Pay in China. It is somewhat more useful for Chinese tourists visiting Malaysia, but also works in reverse. However, it should be noted that there is no currency conversion. This means that users must top up their Chinese RMB and Malaysian Ringgit separately. MaybankPay Payment Method: QR code Notable merchants: Jaya Merchant, TGV cinemas, Mydin, Watson's, McDonald's Bonus: MaybankPay had a much quieter release than any of the other e-wallets on this list. Overall, it doesn't quite have as many bonus features as the competition; focus on being able to provide an e-wallet to support Maybank's product package. However, the Bank has an agreement with Grab to be between MaybankPay and Grab Pay. Allow the two e-wallets to work with the same QR codes. That said, MaybankPay is also one of the few e-wallets in Malaysia to allow users to store their Maybank credit card information. Using the mobile app instead of having to keep a physical card. This puts it in direct competition with Samsung Pay. Although it has the advantage of being available on all Android and iOS phones (instead of being limited to a handful of Samsung branded ones). Maybank folded the features of MaybankPay into the Maybank2u app in June 2020. This consolidation of digital features means that Maybank users will be able to use the Maybank QRPay option in the Maybank2u app. Razer Pay Payment Method: QR Code Notable Merchants: Steam, 7-Eleven, Starbucks Bonus: Directed largely at gamers, Razer Pay is the result of a collaboration between gaming peripheral maker Razer, MCL, and Berjaya Group. For the most part, this e-wallet is intended to support Razer's own eco-system and virtual currency. Funds stored in Razer Pay can be used to purchase Razer's zGold-MOLpoints; which can later be used to purchase games digitally. Alternatively, the virtual currency can also be used to buy gaming peripherals (like keyboards and mice) from the Razerzone online store. This is less attractive to the average consumer, but is perhaps more relevant to gamers. BigPay Payment Method: QR Code, NFC, Prepaid Card Notable Merchants: Airasia Bonus: Created by AirAsia, the bigpay service is split across a Mastercard-backed prepaid card and an e-wallet. The advantage of this is that users are not limited to using only the mobile app to pay for things. Instead, are free to use the prepaid card as a credit card. Complete with the option to make online purchases and withdraw money from ATMs. BigPay also allows users to earn Big Loyalty Program points, which is also the loyalty program for AirAsia flights. Unfortunately, this comes with the caveat that the items are not earned for domestic transactions. AirAsia founder Tony Fernandes believes this will ultimately be worth more than his airline. Although there seems to be quite a bit of competition in this space. Setel Payment Method: GPS location tracking Notable merchants: Petronas Bonus: Petronas' homegrown e-wallet brings an interesting twist to the technology. It uses GPS location tracking to facilitate payments. Basically, the app will find that you are at a participating Petronas station and allow you to start making payments. This is a unique payment system, which unfortunately is a closed ecosystem. The system is limited to only a small selection of Petronas stations at the moment. On the other hand, it is extremely useful for those who would rather not swipe their credit cards at gas stations. myNEWS Malaysia Payment Method: Barcode Merchants: myNEWS Bonus: The myNEWS Malaysia app is not strictly an e-wallet. It is very much for the management of myNEWS loyalty loyalty Program. The app can only be used to pay for purchases in myNEWS stores, and then it still uses an older barcode system for managing transactions. In addition, funds can only be added to the e-wallet at myNEWS stores. AEON Wallet Payment Method: QR Code, Visa-back Prepaid Card Notable Merchants: AEON Affiliated Stores Bonus: This is not necessarily a traditional e-wallet that is primarily designed to work with AEON Members Plus Visa cards. The idea is that AEON Wallet complements the prepaid card by giving users access to its funds and loyalty program without having to carry the card around. But it also means that it benefits from being an e-wallet with a Visa-backed prepaid card. Including the ability to use the funds in non-AEON affiliated stores and for online shopping. Alipay Payment Method: QR Code Notable Merchants: 7-Eleven, Family Mart Bonus: Alipay is technically not available to Malaysians, despite being accepted by local merchants. It is meant to be used by Chinese nationals who visit the country and would like to continue their cashless experience. That said, the main advantage of being able to use Alipay is that it also works in China. Visitors to the country are able to purchase a Tour Pass that allows them to add funds without first owning a Chinese bank account. This is valuable to tourists, as China has largely phased out the use of physical cash, and many merchants only accept payments via e-wallets. This is not an exhaustive list of e-wallets in Malaysia. Currently there are 35 companies and 5 banks with e-money licenses from BNM, all of which are covered by the Financial Services Act 2013 and the Islamic Financial Services Act 2013 Not all of these licenses are currently used for e-wallet apps, but a reasonable number have more focused services. For example, gaming peripheral manufacturer Razer and gamer-focused Razer Pay e-wallet. That said, BNM has issued a directive to create a unified QR coding system for the various e-wallets. There has been little news about when this will be rolled out, but it shouldn't take too long for all parties involved to address the issue. Going forward, this step will make at least a few of these services interchangeable and expand the number of available resellers for the benefit of their customers. *This article was originally published on June 8, 2015.
